

DAYTON PRECISION PUNCH, INC.

Dayton Precision Punch is excited to announce, that due to our increased level of quality and manufacturing capabilities. We have been approached by a number of new customers in areas of manufacturing that we have not participated. As we have done for others over the years, DPPI found that we needed to update our quality system to meet the requirements of these new areas of manufacturing. Unfortunately, our existing ISO 9001:2008 registrar is not certified to support our new opportunities. So DPPI contracted another registrar and will have its ISO 9001:2008 certification along with Aerospace/Defense certification AS 9100 by the end of March 2011. In October, we made a decision not to renew a multi-year contract with our existing registrar to cover certification for the time frame of October 2010 through March 2011. During this void in time, Dayton Precision Punch will still maintain compliance to ISO 9001:2008 and we apologize for any inconvenience we may have caused.
